8 Report of the County Archivist.

The County Archivist presented a report which outlined the work of the Joint Archive Service during the period June – August 2018.

Use of the Service

He reported on the use of the Service for the quarter. He referred to the comparison of statistics for 2017 and 2018 and detailed the background and rationale behind them.

He referred to the increase in views of the online catalogue via the Archives Hub, and the resultant impact on the number of hits to the Archives pages.

Service Outreach

He referred to the collaborative working with Swansea Museum, the Dylan Thomas Centre, Richard Burton Archives Swansea University and the Women's Archive Wales to create three versions of an exhibition celebrating the centenary of the extension of suffrage to women in 1918.

He indicated that the larger, more academic touring exhibition is currently on display in the Swansea Civic Centre foyer. It will then be displayed at the Women's Archive Wales conference in October and at Taliesin Create on the Swansea University Singleton campus.

The smaller touring exhibition has been and will be displayed at the following Swansea venues: Volcano Theatre, YMCA, Terrace Road Primary School & African Community Centre. A fixed exhibition will be installed from mid September and will be on display until the end of the year at Swansea Museum.

He indicated that the Service would welcome more bookings, particularly bookings from schools and from venues in Neath Port Talbot for either of the two touring exhibitions.

He stated that work is underway to create an online resource on the Service's website to commemorate the centenary of the end of World War 1. The intention is that this resource will go live in November.

Publications

He indicated that the publication 'The Parish of Llangyfelach: Landed Estates, Farms and Families' by Jeff Childs will be published and launched during the Autumn. It will be a joint publication between the author and the Archive Service with the stock being divided equally between the two parties.

He outlined that there would be one further publication before the Service's Publications programme was wound up, a volume describing the post-war Rebuilding of Swansea. It would be published in 2019.

He referred to the potential for the Service in the future to start publishing eBooks as an alternative to hard copy versions.

Education Service/Talks to Groups

He referred to education sessions undertaken at Cefn Hengoed Community School and St Helen's Primary and a talk given to Ystradgynlais Family History Society

2. Service outreach

Exhibitions and events

The major archive exhibition of 2018 has been one commemorating the centenary of the partial granting of the women's voting rights in 1918. It was created in partnership with Swansea Museum, the Dylan Thomas Centre, Swansea University and Women's Archive Wales. The 15-panel portable exhibition comes in two sections, one aimed at a general audience and the other at children aged 11-16. The sections can be exhibited either together or separately. During the quarter, either or both of the exhibitions have been displayed in the Swansea Civic Centre foyer; Swansea YMCA; the Women's Archive Wales annual conference; Taliesin Create, Swansea University; Volcano Theatre, Swansea; Terrace Road Primary School Swansea; Margam Orangery, Port Talbot. The same exhibition content was also displayed in Swansea Museum on fixed display boards alongside artefacts from the museum collections.

The 2014 archive exhibition entitled 'Remembering our Heroes' was displayed at Carnegie Hall during the Skewen and District Local History Society's First World War commemorative event held on 10 November.

The 2016 archive exhibition celebrating the area's multicultural heritage, 'Our Abertawe' was exhibited throughout the quarter at the UWTSD library 'Y Fforwm' on its new SA1 campus.

Publications

'The Parish of Llangyfelach: Landed Estates, Farms and Families' by Jeff Childs, a joint publication between the author and the Archive Service, was printed and delivered during the quarter, with a launch date planned for 8th December at Llangyfelach Parish Hall. Since 1992, the Service has published around 25 local history books, continuing a tradition set by its predecessors Glamorgan Record Office and Swansea City Archives. There has however been no book published by the Service since 2010. Along with Glamorgan and Gwent Archives, West Glamorgan Archives plays an active part in the South Wales Record Society which publishes records from our collections and those of our partner offices in Cardiff and Ebbw Vale.

Education Service

During the quarter, sessions have been delivered to the following schools either on-site or in the Archives:

Casllwchwr
Hendrefoilan
Pengelli

Archive staff also delivered a session to students from UWTSD.

Talks to groups

During the quarter, talks have been given by Archive staff to the following groups either on-site or in the Archives:

Adult Education local history class, Gorseinon

External events

There have been a number of external events during the autumn where the Archives has provided a stand to publicise the service and sell publications, as follows:

Glamorgan Family History Fair
Glamorgan History Society Day School
Swansea Local History Bookfair

'Explore Your Archive'

Every year archives from across the UK and Ireland take part in a week-long campaign entitled 'Explore Your Archive' to publicise the multiplicity and diversity of archives to be found across the British Isles. The County Archivist appeared on Radio Wales' breakfast show 'Good Morning Wales' on Saturday 17th November to help publicise the EYA campaign in Wales.

Although it did not run any special event this year, the Archive Service participated in the EYA social media campaign and provided a number of EYA giveaways (pencils, notebooks, badges etc which were kindly provided by Welsh Government) to its customers and visitors to Swansea Central Library during the week.

Centenary of the Armistice

To mark the centenary of the end of the First World War, the Archive Service created a resource based on the rolls of honour and war memorials we hold. These were digitised, the names were indexed and compiled into an interactive list, and the results were uploaded onto the Archive Service website, going live on Remembrance Sunday.

The resource enables remote users to click a name in the list, view the memorial where it appears and read more information about how it was made and where it used to be on display. The intention is for it to remain on the website, and to be added to as new rolls of honour are received.

Online display of treasures from the Neath Abbey Ironworks collection

West Glamorgan Archive Service was delighted to receive a grant in November 2017 from the Friends of the National Libraries (FNL) to digitise and web-mount a selection of the 8,000 engineering drawings which form its Neath Abbey Ironworks collection. The collection represents a unique survival of such drawings in quantity from the late eighteenth century to the late nineteenth. Taken together the drawings provide documentary evidence of Wales' role in the transformation of Britain during the Industrial Revolution and they are the Service's most important collection from a national perspective. The collection's exceptional quality was recognised by UNESCO in 2014 when the collection was inscribed on the UK register of its Memory of the World programme.

Following the award of the grant, sixty six of the plans were selected by the Archives, with the help of members of the voluntary group Friends of Neath Abbey, to represent a cross-section of the finest parts of the collection, including plans for mine pumping engines, marine engines and railway locomotives. The drawings were digitised by the National Library of Wales, which has facilities for digitising large plans, and the digital images were placed online on the website People's Collection Wales at <https://www.peoplescollection.wales/users/28926> in May of this year.

An innovative part of the project was to create and web-mount 3D virtual images of two of the early railway locomotives built by the works, locomotives 'Speedwell' and 'Industry'. The National Library had developed some expertise in 3D construction and undertook this work as well. The locomotives were selected because they showed experiments which were unusual for their time and did not ultimately become common practice. For example, one of the locomotives had a hinged chimney which lowered to allow the locomotive to pass through tunnels. At the time of writing, the PCW website is preparing bilingual publicity to go with the publishing of these virtual models.

3. Professional meetings and partnership working

During the quarter, members of Archives staff have attended the following professional meetings and taken part in partnership work as follows:

Archives and Records Council Wales
Chief Archivists in Local Government Group Executive
South Wales Emergency Planning Group
Swansea Archives Libraries Museums Co-operation Group

4. Accessions of archive collections

A comprehensive list of archives received during the period September to November 2018 is attached for information at Appendix 1.
